Regents of the University of California v. Bakke (1978)
Comparing the University of California at Davis’ Admissions Program to Harvard’s

At the time the Supreme Court found UC-Davis’ medical school admission process unconstitutional, Harvard College’s admission process was congratulated for ensuring diversity in a nondiscriminatory manner.

Read the excerpt of Harvard’s admission policy provided and complete the Venn Diagram below.

An excerpt from Harvard’s admissions policy reads: “Contemporary conditions in the United States mean that if Harvard College is to continue to offer a first-rate education to its students, minority representation in the undergraduate student body cannot be ignored by the Committee on Admissions.”

Do you agree or disagree with this statement? Explain.

After comparing Harvard’s admissions program to UC’s, do you think the Supreme Court of the United States would find Harvard’s program constitutional or not? Explain your answer below.